

Concord Nov. 4 1835-

My dear Miss Boston

Enclosed are twelve dollars, eight from our Society, two from J. Loring, and two from myself, which we hope will be of some service to you in aiding the publication of the Liberty Bell. I talked with Mr. Emerson the other night about the book, and tried to make him feel the importance of this work. I don't know whether he has written any thing for you or not, but hope he has. You don't know how I was disappointed in not seeing you here. I had set my heart upon seeing you, and conversing about the interests of our Zion. I hope the visit is to come, but I almost despair. Still it is a comfort to feel that there are a few, & how few, who have put on the harness now to put it off while a slave tramples our soil or humanity in any form is crushed and down trodden. Of such are you. May God give you in abundance that peace and gladness of heart which always arises to those who care for the afflicted and distressed.

Respectfully Yours,
M. M. Brooks-
